

The Legacy of the First World War: The View From One Century Later

Chemical warfare, unrestricted submarine warfare, the aerial bombardment of cities...

The sheer magnitude of the slaughter that attended World War I changed fundamentally the way much of the world viewed warfare. Join us as Mike Walker presents a brief overview of the First World War and its consequences.

"I have been a political junkie for as long as I can remember. I love teaching and can't imagine doing anything else. I have studied abroad and in particular like European history and studying foreign policy and conflict. My grandfather fought in the First World War and was a pilot. As a young boy my father took me to meetings of Cross and Cockade, an amateur association that studied the aviation history of the Great War. I have been a member of and participated in various military history associations and have a great interest in this subject. I am offering a seminar class on this subject in the spring of 2014." –Mike Walker

WHERE: Whitney Presentation Hall

WHEN: Thursday, February 6th, 2014

TIME: 7:00 PM

FOR MORE INFORMATION:

Sheridan College Foundation 307.674.6446 x4304

Misty Bateman 307.674.6446 x2830

Free Admission

Mike Walker is a full-time faculty member at Sheridan College teaching History and Political Science.